

The best board game ever!

When I was little, I loved to play board games. I usually invited my friends to play board games together in my house. I always played for too long that I forgot the time. Board games were always my closest friends.

As I got older, I had more and more activities. I preferred video games to board games. Playing them made me feel loved and annoying.

When I was six years old, I got a game for my birthday. I was annoyed when I saw it. After I opened the board game, I realized that it had a map for playing but it was blank. I was confused and then saw a paper that said, 'you'll have to write your rules on the blanks.' I followed its instructions and played it after writing. It was enjoyable so I played for several times. At last, a paper dropped out and said, 'Happy birthday! This is the game you created and it's the best game ever.'

The greatest watch

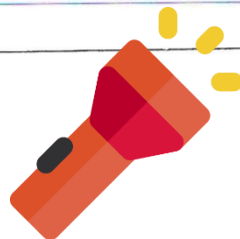

I have invented the greatest watch in the world. The name of this invention is 'iWatch'. The reason I've invented this watch is it contains different functions.

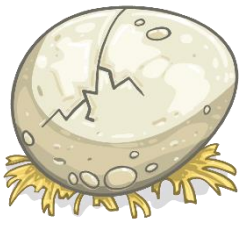

It has three main functions: telling the time, lighting and projecting. For telling the time, this iWatch can tell you the date and the time (accurate to the second) clearly. In addition, it can also time, count down and set an alarm clock. For lighting, it is useful when you are in the dark. It can serve as a flashlight. For projecting, you need to connect the iWatch and your mobile phone with Bluetooth. After that, you can operate on your mobile phone. You can also see the phone screen on the projection screen. When you use this function outside, it's just like bringing a television outside!

The iWatch is made of a kind of black soft metal. This material has strong heat absorption and light absorption. The heat and light can turn into energy for the watch too. So when the watch has no electricity, just put it under the light or the sun.

This amazing iWatch is sold in every electronic equipment store. Come and buy it now! You will definitely like it!

The mystery egg

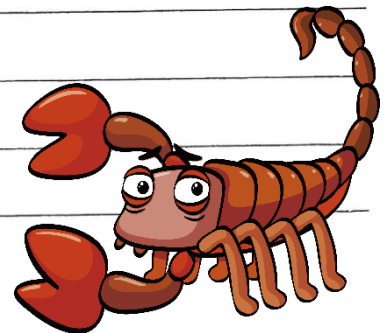

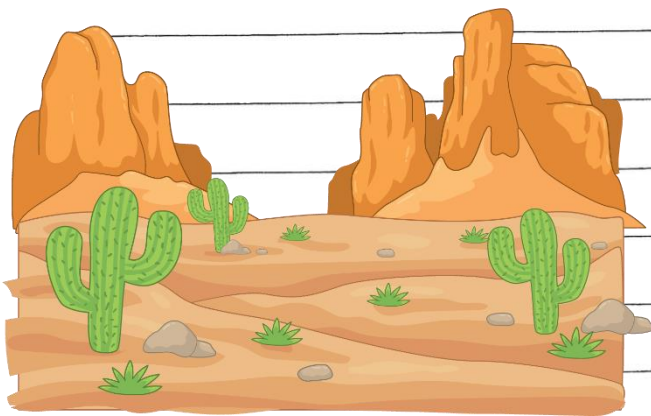

Today, I was in the Sahara Desert and I found a mystery egg, under the sand while I was using my metal detector. When I found the egg, I was very puzzled and thought to which animal this egg belonged to? In the Zoo? In the forest? In the arctic ocean? I couldn't tell.

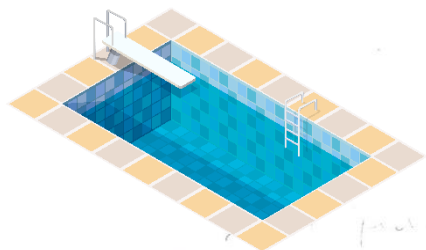

Shortly after the find, the egg hatched, so I ran to it very fast and I saw a scorpion coming out. At first, I was very terrified because it looked like a spider, but the scorpion didn't bite or harm me, I was really surprised. It said, "Don't be scared, I am nonpoisonous and harmless". So I trusted the scorpion and we befriended each other.

At last, I decided to pet it and named him "Scorpy". It was happy and jumped over me. At dinner, I cooked his favourite meal — tomato egg and beef salad. We became the best friends.

Last year, we had a school swimming competition. Our school representative included 5 people and a set of twins. The twins are called Molly chang with the pink bracelet and Lorrie chang with the purple bracelet. They look exactly the same.

When the competition had ended, the school announced that Molly had won, but they had switched their bracelets before the competition and it was supposed to be Lorrie who had won. The school didn't notice and gave the medal to Molly.

Lorrie was devastated for the rest of the year until they moved to secondary school because Lorrie did not tell Molly. When Lorrie finally told Molly, Lorrie got back the medal.

In the end, Molly felt very sorry for not switching back the bracelet before the race.
